Up-to-dateness

Current and new publications are as important as the studies carried out in the past in science.

In our century, where access to information has become easier compared to the past, parallel to the widespread use of technology and the increase in technological opportunities, the desire of researchers to follow new publications and benefit from them in their studies is increasing.

To meet this dynamic cycle, article databases must always remain up-to-date.

With these concerns, Academindex works to facilitate access to the most up-to-date articles for researchers.

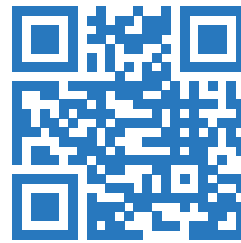

On the one hand, it collects years of experience for you, on the other hand, it regularly follows respected publishers and valuable articles and constantly expands its database.

Dozens of university libraries and thousands of academics at home and abroad benefit from the privileges and quality of Academindex.
